The pending suit to dissolve it under the Sherman anti-trust act will be pressed with vigor by Attorney General McReynolds.

For the last week officials have been hopeful that the recent conferences between McReynolds and Snowden Marshall, the United States District Attorney at New York would result in a peaceful settlement of the suit which was filed more than three years ago. This hope was shattered today when word came from New York that negotiations had been abandoned.

Department officials tonight declined to discuss the case and the exact points which failed of adjustment were not made public.

IMPORTANT ITEMS WAIT

On Senate Calendar Joint Resolution Proposing an Amendment for Woman Suffrage Near Top.

special to The News.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 9.—With the end of the Christmas recess but two days away senators and representatives who went home for the holidays are arriving in Washington today by almost every train.

When the two houses resume Monday they will get down to business immediately, for many important matters are to be considered and acted upon by the lawmakers in the comparatively brief period remaining before constitutional limitation brings the congressional session to an end.

Three Important Items.

Three important items of unfinished business were left on the House calendar when that body adjourned for the Christmas holidays. They are the Alaska railroad bill, a joint resolution providing for the appointment of a committee to investigate and report a plan for national aid to vocational education and the District of Columbia appropriation bill.

On the Senate calendar the point resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution extending the right of suffrage to women stands near the top, following closely by the Owen bill for the establishment of a legislative reference bureau of the Library of Congress, which is intended to give Congress at first-hand expert advice on legislative matters, particularly in the drafting of legislation. Should this measure pass it would provide Congress with a bureau similar to the one now in existence in the legislative service.

Public Health Service.

On the House calendar, to be considered by the committee of the whole House on the State of the Union included among them are the Adamson bill to create a public health service with broader powers than those now enjoyed by the Public Health Service; the Clapp bill, prohibiting the sending of campaign contributions from one State to another; the Burnett bill, to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States; and the Booth-Bill relatives to interstate commerce in agriculture.

The bills were drafted as a result of a conference between Chairman Clayton and Representatives Carlisle, Floyd and McCoy and others, to cover these main points: Interlocking directorates, trade relations and actions, induction proceedings and damage suits by individuals.

WILL TEACH SEX HYGIENE IN DALLAS

DALLAS, Texas, Jan. 9.—In accordance with its policy for several years the Dallas Y. M. C. A. will begin its annual sex hygiene campaign tomorrow under the direction of Dr. James J. Terrell, now pathologist at the Temple Sanitarium and formerly of the medical faculty of the University of Texas.

Dr. Terrell will arrive in Dallas Saturday morning and will speak to co-education boys at the Y. M. C. A. at 11 o'clock. At 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon he will speak to the mothers of Dallas at the Y. M. C. A. on the subject, "How to Instruct in Sex Matters." At 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon he will address the regular co-ed afternoon men's mass meeting at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium on the subject, "The Necessity of Sex Education."

Anti-trust Law Changes.

Most important of all however is a proposed amendment to the anti-trust bill. Up to date no general plan has been adopted. President Wilson will wait until the time after Congress reassembles to bring before the law makers his own detailed bills on the subject.

In addition to bills already on the books there are two bills introduced in Congress which have not yet reached the calendar of either house. One of these is the La Follette seamen's bill, which has already passed the Senate, and upon which hearings have already been held by the merchant marine and fisheries committee of the House.

Another is the Adamson legislation introduced in the House last term. The Christmas recess provided for the suspension for two years of that provision in the Panama canal bill which will give to American citizens the right to use the canal.

Objections to the bill are that it will interfere with the rights of the Chinese laborers in California.

Opposition to the bill is based on the fact that it will interfere with the rights of the Chinese laborers in California.

The greatest opposition to the bill appears to be on the part of the bankers.

The bankers are apprehensive of the bill because it will interfere with their business.
